Hi

Here is a picture of Zeus waiting for Santa to arrive.....napping under the tree is very common. We think he thinks he is outside:)

Almost a year old and still naughty - Santa should just bring him coal but of course he has a gift bag full of toys and goodies. Not spoiled at all

I finally bought some ultra bitter spray the other day as he has chewed the blinds and the cords right off them. Since they were a special order and quite pricey - Mom was very upset with him. He started to chew the branches on the tree so I gave that a spray and he is leaving it alone.

One question.....he always carries his tail straight up yet Vera's Phin does not. Do you know what that means - you can never catch him with his tail down - always up like an arrow. Just wondering what that means.

Several people have inquired on where we got Zeus - they think he is so beautiful and sweet - he loves everybody but is especially tolerant of the six year old grandchild. He won't let us hold him - he sits on the back of the chair we are in but that is as close as he wants us most of the time. I was hoping for a lap cat but he isn't that lovey dovey.

You and Rob have a wonderful Christmas - we still look at your website to see all the kittens.

I will send a one year picture in January

Happy Holidays
